considerably better. He has been out to the neighbors several times this week.

Albert Hanscom remains about the same.

What is claimed to be the largest black walnut tree in this vicinity stands at Gustavus L. Dixon's and has a stem twelve inches in diameter. This tree is not native in this climate and grows here only when planted.

The drama "Me an' Otis" will be repeated next Friday at the town hall, for the benefit of the Congregational church furnace fund. Ernest

O. Searle will appear in the role of Dick Davis.

There is some talk of remodeling the interior of the town hall with sheathing, a new stage and other improvements.

Representative C. Edward Bartlett of Eliot is reported from Augusta as opposed to the removal of the York county seat from Alfred. The county delegation is believed to stand eight to eight on the matter. Nobody went from Eliot to the hearing at the state house on Friday.

There is some disappointment among Eliot Grangers at the result of the vote in Springvale on Friday when York county Pomona Grange voted against division. Those here rather hoped for a division.

(Special to the Herald)
Washington, Feb. 13.—The third squadron of the Atlantic fleet, on the way to meet Admiral Sperry, was located at eight o'clock this forenoon in 24.59 north latitude 68.41 west longitude.

All was well.

The prisoners have certainly made a wonderful showing about the naval prison.

Benjamin F. Dow's Sudden Death

A New Orchestra in the Town

Robinson Seminary Seniors Have Reception

Many Lincoln Day Observances Were Held in Exeter

Exeter, Feb. 13.
At the home of his niece, Mrs. Arthur Sanborn of Linden street, occurred the death of Benjamin F. Dow of Kensington, on Friday at the age of sixty-seven years. Mr. Dow was in apparently good health in the morning and took a walk to town, a distance of about a mile. On his arrival at his niece's he was taken with pains and death soon followed. He was the last male member of a family of ten children. Two sisters, Mrs. Harry Beckman and Mrs. Robie of Kensington now survive him. He was a thrifty farmer of that town. The funeral services will be held on Sunday at the home of his sister.

One of the latest of local musical organizations is the Squamscot orchestra, composed of six pieces. This band of musicians was formerly known as the Glendale orchestra and the members furnished music for many events last summer, principally at Old Home celebrations and picnics. The personnel of the organization is Lester Buzzell, violin; George Poliquin, violin; Charles Higgins, cornet; Perrin Hersey, drum; Howard Brown, clarinet; Charles Batchelder, trombone; James Seward, cornet.

The seniors of Robinson Seminary on Friday evening held the annual mid-winter reception. The young ladies had transformed the chapel into a scene of splendor, where youth and merriment held sway during the evening hours. The handsome gowns of the ladies made a pleasing picture. The students of Phillips Academy were generously represented among those on the floor and many coming from the neighboring towns and cities. Streamers of yellow and white, the school colors, and gold and black, the senior class colors, together with the banners of many of the New England colleges, were pending from the wall and other decorations of potted plants, cut flowers and pictures made the decorations some of the most attractive for years. Music was furnished by Whitman's Fest orchestra of Haverhill, Mass., and a pleasing concert was rendered by this organization previous to the dancing. Some of the recitation rooms were thrown open in hospitality where many of the guests spent pleasant periods. In these retreats college banners and potted plants overlooked the happy faces. Punch was served by the Misses Beatrice Carlisle and Esther French. A program of eight teen dances and several extras was carried out. The class officers are: President, Miss Florence Gallant; vice president, Miss Grace R. Lamson; secretary, Miss Evelyn Hudson; treasurer, Miss Florence Baker. The floor was in charge of Miss Helen Richardson, who was assisted by Misses Beatrice Carlisle and Esther French.

At Unity hall on Friday evening Exeter Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held the meeting ordinarily assigned for Washington's birthday. Miss Emily W. Tapley of the seminary faculty gave a paper on Lincoln.

The centenary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln had many interesting observances in Exeter on Friday. At the academy a special chapel service was held at noon. In his brief remarks Principal Harlan P. Amen alluded to the academy's pride in the compliment paid by Lincoln in sending to it his oldest son. It was eminently fitting that the school should pay tribute to the martyred president. An address on "The Character and Work of Lincoln" was given by Dr. William MacDonald, professor of American history at Brown, an incumbent of Prof. Hart's chair at Harvard during the round-the-world journey. Rev. Dr. S. H. Dana conducted the devotions and the music concluded "America."

At 11.30 a. m. Prof. James A. Tufts gave an address on Abraham Lincoln before the pupils of Robinson Seminary. It was a half-holiday at the public schools and in the morning nearly all had appropriate exercises. That at the high school mainly comprised remarks and readings by Principal Harry E. Walker. At the grammar there were compositions, singing and Lincoln readings and stories.

At 10.45 a. m. the First Church of Christ, Scientist, had an appropriate service, with "Freedom" as the subject.

At the town hall in the evening a commemorative service of special interest was held under the auspices of Moses N. Collins post and corps. Lieutenant George S. Cobbs Camp, Sons of Veterans, and the auxiliary of the camp. The attendance was large. Frank E. Rollins, a prominent member of the post, presided and made brief opening remarks. Rev. Victor M. Haughton and Rev. Dr. S. H. Dana conducted the devotions. Prof. James A. Tufts gave the address. There was singing by forty-eight school children under the direction of Miss Alice G. Jewell. A quartet composed of Clarence M. Collins, Leonard D. Hunt, J. Gilbert Holly and John A. Glassey also sang. The reading of the Gettysburg address by the presiding officer, a piano duet by Misses Edgerly and Kimball, and readings by Mrs. Edward G. Towle completed the program.

Many friends in Exeter will sympathize with John Robinson, a former townsman, now of Murphysboro, Ill., in the recent death of a son on the day of his birth.

The next meeting of the Renaissance Club will be held Monday at the residence of Mr. Fuller on Court street. The paper of the evening will be given by Miss Littlefield on "The Lake Poets."

Mr. Elbridge A. Goodwin, who has long been seriously ill with pneumonia and complications, is now able to sit up, but is still confined to his room.

Deacon John N. Thompson, Mrs. Albertus T. Dudley and Miss Frances E. Smith have been chosen an advisory missionary committee of the First church.

Miss Augustine Haughton will sing at Christ church Sunday morning and afternoon.

President Flavel S. Luther of Trinity College will be the preacher at Christ church on Sunday.

Gilman Grange will exemplify the fourth degree at the regular meeting next Monday evening. "Good Roads" will be discussed by Jewett P. Swasey and others.

The benevolences of the First church last year were $280.80.

Mrs. Edward Graney is making a good recovery from an operation performed at the Carney Hospital, South Boston, on January 29 by Dr. F. W. Johnson.

At the "Martha Washington" box party to be given in Grand Army hall Feb. 22 by the Sons of Veterans auxiliary, many of the ladies will dress in colonial costume.

SECRETARY NEWBERRY ON PORTSMOUTH NAVY YARD

It Is One of Those Absolutely Needed for the American Navy

Yards At Pensacola and New Orleans Might Well Be Abolished

Much excitement and worryment has come to the surface of late from the fact that a commission had been appointed by the President with the view of closing up some of the navy yards, among which would be the finish of Portsmouth yard.

It was learned that a majority of this committee did not look favorably upon Portsmouth yard but nobody ever knew for certain just how this committee stood.

At several times Secretary Newberry has been given the credit for being hostile to the Portsmouth navy yard. People close to naval matters could not be convinced of this and it turns out that they were right. Here is the best item of news heard for some time relative to the matter in question. Read it.

Secretary Newberry before the House of Representatives naval committee was asked how many navy yards are required. This was his answer:

"The navy yards that I believe it is necessary to maintain are Portsmouth, because of its dry dock, and because it is one of three dry docks now constructed which can take in the largest ships we have under construction or proposed; Boston for obvious reasons, being the center of a great labor market; New York for the same reason; Philadelphia for the same reason; Norfolk for the same reason; Charleston because we have built a large naval dry dock there, and it is the farthest point south that is suitable for auxiliaries and minor repair purposes. I do not think we should ever develop that yard as a battleship repair yard. Key West is a very minor, small, inexpensive place to repair these small craft in the Caribbean Sea. Pensacola should be closed up; so should New Orleans."

The lecture on Lincoln by Rev. E. T. Pitts of Eliot in the Second Christian church on Thursday evening was one of the finest addresses ever listened to by a Kittery audience.

Under the direction of Mrs. Flora Hays Spence the choir of the Second Christian church is planning to give a Mendelssohn evening on some Sunday in April.

The places in town where flags were noticed on Lincoln day were Mr. Levi L. Goodrich, Col. Jethro Sweet, Mrs. Lizzie L. Getchell, Mr. J. R. Philbrick, Mr. Jacob Patch, Mr. O. C. Williams and a few others.

Mr. Samuel Keene of Government street is improving from his illness.

Mr. William Waldron of Otis avenue, who was poisoned by some cabbage, is gaining in strength each day and a speedy recovery is looked for.

Mrs. Euell, wife of an officer on the U. S. S. Eagle, is boarding with Miss Mary Safford of Wentworth street.

Kittery Point

George Kimball has purchased the express business of E. B. Grace and will start on his new duties Monday. His many friends are pleased and wish him the best of success.

Your Neighbors

So many people scattered all over the American Continent have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines that there's scarcely a hamlet where some of these grateful people are not to be easily found—ever ready to say a good word for the medicines which cured them and which very likely may cure you, if similarly afflicted. Look them up. They are walking advertisements for Dr. Pierce's medicines—ever ready to pass the good news along that these medicines cure when many others fail. Little advertised NOW, because their record of 40 years of cures makes great displays of their merits unnecessary. The great American people, pretty generally know of their unequalled record.

value of $5,000, and it may become necessary to sell the vessel as junk to the highest bidder without regard to the appraisement. Not a single bid was received by the department in response to the advertised offer to sell the lara for $5,300 or more. Since being condemned and stricken from the naval register the lara has been kept at the navy yard, Boston. She is a converted yacht rigged ninety six feet long, sixteen feet broad and seven feet draft, with a displacement of 129 tons. She was built by George Lawley & Sons at Boston in 1888, and was purchased by the government for use in the Spanish war. During the latter part of her career she was used as a training vessel by the naval militia of Massachusetts.

Forty-eight men have died on the cruise of the battleship fleet since it left Hampton Roads in December 1907, up to the time the ships left Gibraltar, according to the navy department's figures. Some of the bodies have been sent home, this being invariably the case where the relatives have asked that it be done; the remainder have found a last resting place in foreign climes. The ratio of deaths to the 15,000 men composing the officers and crews of the fleet is probably lower than in ordinary walks of life. Insurance companies regard sailors generally as good risks.

HOTEL MAN LOSES EYE

Lancaster, Feb. 13.—C. Marshall, the proprietor of the Lancaster house, will probably lose the sight of an eye as the result of an unfortunate accident. Mr. Marshall owns a farm in Gildred and has been getting out some lumber for use around the hotel, spending considerable time over them himself. While assisting his men in swamping out a pond, a heavy limb struck him across the eye, knocking him down and rendering him unconscious for the time. He was confined to his room for forty-eight hours and will probably never be able to use his eye again. This is particularly unfortunate, as the other eye is affected.

WITH THE THEATRICAL FOLK

"Uncle Tom" Twice in One Day

Of all the great American plays the old historical drama, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," has the strongest hold on the people. It is beyond question one of the best plays ever written, hence the warm place it retains in the hearts of people of every clime.

The greatest production that this American classic has ever had will be given at Portsmouth Music Hall, Monday and evening of Tuesday, Feb. 16, under the management of Leon W. Washburn.

Watch for the big street parade with two brass bands, "Eva" in her golden chariot, "Marks" and his donkey, a pack of real Cuban bloodhounds, beautiful Shetland ponies, tableaux floats, jugglers and a host of new sensations.

Andrew Mack Next Friday

The engagement of Andrew Mack of Portsmouth Music Hall is for Feb. 19, when he will appear for the first time in a comedy drama by Cecil De Mille, called "Sergeant Devil M'Care."

The play is a radical departure from any of the others in which Mr. Mack has starred so successfully in America and Australia. In "Sergeant Devil M'Care" Mr. Mack will play the role of Victor O'Brien, of the Canadian northwest mounted police, which is also the title role. This is the only Irish character in the piece, all of the others being Americans. The time of action is the present.

Mr. Mack will sing a number of new songs in his inimitable way, including a beautiful waltz number, "Somewhere," and a song which he just composed, entitled "O, You Girl."

Mr. Mack has selected an excellent cast to support him, including Cecil De Mille, the author of the play, Mary Nash, Mildred Doolittle, Emmet Gifford and others.

CLARK SAFE

Reached the Isle of Shoals in His Dory

Charles H. Clark, the lobster fisherman who was thought to have been lost on Thursday night, when he did not return of midnight from his lobster job, reached the Isle of Shoals safely, and passed the night there, returning Friday morning.

When the wind came up Clark was being blown to sea and seeing that he would be taken out into the boats he made a struggle and reached the island.

HEIFER WINTERED OUTDOORS

Gilman, Feb. 13.—Charles G. Wilder, a local place has recently captured a heifer that has been running wild in the woods and fields. The heifer was away last fall when the other stock was put in the barn and the owner was not able to trace her and he supposed that she had been shot or had died in the woods. When captured she was in fair flesh and had a long coat of hair.

The new Lincoln stamps met with a ready sale on Friday. The picture on the stamp in the opinion of many looks more like Speaker Cannon than President Lincoln.

DEADLY WATER OF THE DESERT

Mistake Made by Travelers in the Arid Wastes of the Southwest.

"One of the chief dangers to travelers in crossing such dread and arid wastes as the far famed Death Valley in Nevada arises from ignorance as to the character of the infrequent pools of water along the route," said T. E. Smalley, a mining engineer of Denver.

"The tenderfoot, growing faint under a blazing sun, will want to quench his intolerable thirst when he comes to a shallow hole, whose water, clear as crystal, seems absolutely pure. Its can with difficulty be restrained from drinking it by some experienced companion, who knows that one draught will probably cause serious if not fatal illness. This water, for all its seeming purity and clearness, is loaded with arsenic, and many a man has lost his life by its use.

"Curiously enough, the only water in the desert that is safe to drink is foul looking and inhabited by bugs and snakes. When you come to a muddy pool on the surface of which insects are disgusting themselves, however repulsive it may be both to the eye and palate, you may drink it with impunity, despite its looks, as a man will who is crazy with thirst produced by the burning sands and merciless sun."

Consumption and the Telephone.

The panic recently created on the subject of the assumed danger lurking in the transmitter of the telephone is not precisely new. It is but the development of a fear which has caused misgiving for some years. On the supposition that various germs of disease probably collect in the receiver and transmitter of the instrument, at any rate in public telephone stations, some medical alarmists have thrown out suggestions that antiseptics, both in a dry state and in solution, should be applied for the safety of the telephone user. The recent dictum goes one step further, inasmuch as it is now an established fact that tubercle bacilli, the casual micro-organisms of consumption, have been found—alive and in robust condition—in the instrument. It is quite natural, in view of such a find, that a feeling of alarm might seize hold of the more nervous. — British Medical Journal.

Ancient Knowledge.

The Greek, Eratosthenes, 250 B. C., taught the doctrine of the roundness of the earth, and the ideas of the sphere, its poles, axis, the equator, arctic and antarctic circles, equinoctial points and the solstices were quite generally entertained by the wise men of that time. There were plenty of men in Rome, therefore, who were prepared to talk about the earth as a sphere and to make globes illustrating their ideas.

Beet Sugar in Europe.

Europe's production of beet sugar in the season of 1907-'8 was 6,552,600 tons, a decrease of 138,000 tons from 1906-'07 and 330,000 tons from 1905-'06. Germany led in 1907-'08 with 2,152,000 tons, followed by Austria-Hungary with 1,440,000 and Russia with 1,410,000.

First Jewish Cemetery.

Many travelers on the Third and Second avenue elevated railways of New York city wonder how the little cemetery at New Bowery and Oliver street came to be there. It is a remnant of the first Jewish cemetery in the United States and was established in 1656.

European Women Architects.

Mrs. Michaelis, an architect, is now constructing what will be when finished the largest building in Marseilles. Great Britain has at least one famous woman architect, Miss Elizabeth McClelland.

As She Understood It.

Small Margie while at church heard the choir sing "Rock of Ages, Glean for Me." Upon her return home she was heard singing, very seriously, "Rock the babies, kept for me."

When Graft Will Be.

The human race will not be absolutely perfect until a man can educate himself to walk by a two-dollar bill on the sidewalk and not pick it up. Then, indeed, would graft be dead in him.

The Real Thing.

"I guess I'll take a hand in the poker game," blazed the gambler's wife, as she broke up the party with a flourish of that homely but useful kitchen article in her muscular hand.

Increasing the Suffering.

Sometimes the first pangs of remorse come to criminals when they see how idiotic they are made to look by the artist who "draws from life."

Loafers at the Pool Table.

The best pool players in any town are generally the young fellows who never hang onto one job very long at a time.

TRIPLE ELOPEMENT

By M. E. Russell.

You never heard how father, Jennie and I eloped? That is funny. Everybody in Springville knows it, and for months it was the leading gossip of the town.

Father was the youngest of his family and was by nature very easy-going. When mother died, leaving father with us two grown-up girls, we planned to keep the home going as before. Two days after the funeral Aunt Jerusha, father's oldest sister and an old maid, appeared on the scene and announced that she had come to run the home for us.

Before his marriage father had been accustomed to doing just as his sister said, and now he saw but one thing to do—to let Aunt Jerusha step in and manage the house. For a year we submitted, but the break came when she absolutely forbade us to have any young men call on us. We went bitter tears, but lacked the courage to refuse to submit, although I was bound I would meet John Storer somewhere. My story aroused the sympathy of Mrs. Jones, a widow, who lived near at hand, and on her motherly breast I sobbed out my troubles as I would to my mother.

It was easy to make arrangements to meet John at her home, and so engrossed was I in my courtship that I failed to realize that Jennie, my sister, was listening with equal interest to words of love from John's brother.

Finally John and I felt that the time had come when we should be married and go to live on the farm he had recently bought, but I lacked the courage to face aunt. I was the one that suggested the idea of eloping and John was only too willing. We thought our plans had been made in secret until father called me aside one day and said: "Jess, I've learned that you are going to run off and get married. Now just wait a bit and see if things won't come right." We waited for over a month but no material change took place in the family affairs.

One day Jennie came to my room and, putting her arms around my neck, she whispered: "Jessie, I am in love with Henry Storer, but we do not dare to speak to Aunt Jerusha. What shall we do?"

We sat there all night, exchanging confidences and bemoaning our ill-luck in having aunt addled on us and our lack of confidence in not daring to openly defy her.

It was Jennie who first suggested taking the widow Jones into our confidence, and in the morning she had two girls weeping on her shoulders. The words of consolation and advice she gave us were comforting, and I kissed her tenderly as I said: "Dear, dear Mrs. Jones, you have been just like a mother to us." "Well, girls," she replied, "let me give you a mother's advice. You put off your elopement for a few days, and then quietly go away and get married." We finally decided that on the 15th of July we would go in the neighboring town and have a double wedding. Mrs. Jones agreeing to break the news kindly to father.

On the morning of the day we went to Mrs. Jones' house, where we had for days been smuggling out clothes, and met our lovers. As we started for the station, Mrs. Jones, dressed in her best, came with us. Noticing our surprise, she said: "Girls, I have fixed it with your father all right, and he wants me to stay with you till it is over."

We hardly knew whether to be pleased or not, but just then our attention was taken by seeing father at the station in his best suit.

Putting a sad face on, I walked up to him and said, "Good-by, dad. We are going away to get married." "Well," he said, "your dad is a good one," and as we stepped on the train, he and the widow followed us. The same thought came to Jennie and me at the same time, and we burst out with, "I believe you and Mrs. Jones are running away about."

The color that came to the widow's comely face, and father's embarrassment, told the whole story, and a follier eloping party never was seen. It was three couples that stood before the minister, and after the ceremony we sent the following telegram to aunt: "We have just been married to Mrs. Jones, Harry Storer and John Storer. Will be back Thursday. Father, Jennie and Jessie."

How did aunt take it? Like the good old New England soul that she was. When we came back, we found a fine supper ready, and the very next morning she took us to her room, and told us the whole story, and a follier eloping party never was seen. It was three couples that stood before the minister, and after the ceremony we sent the following telegram to aunt: "We have just been married to Mrs. Jones, Harry Storer and John Storer. Will be back Thursday. Father, Jennie and Jessie."

But His Feelings. Lord Charles Bampfylde, always a temperate man, but now an advocate of total abstinence, was horrified at a dinner at which a lady noticed he took no wine, and exclaimed: "Ah, I suppose all of you hard drinkers have to come to it sooner or later."

SHOULD WIVES GET SALARIES?

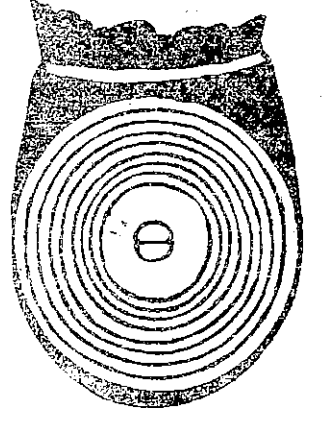

If This Were Possible It Would Prevent Much Unhappiness.

It is frequently stated that the chief reason why French marriages are, as a rule, happier than ours, lies in the fact that the wife's domestic duties are not at the root of much matrimonial misery.

A great deal is written and spoken of the extravagance of women. But somehow few persons seem willing to air the grievances of those thousands of wives whose pittance of pin-money is doled out irregularly at the capricious wills of their lords and masters. The father will not make his daughter any allowance, even if he can afford to do so, when she marries. She will have money at his death, perhaps, but not a day before.

In wealthier circles marriage settlements are the rule, despite the fact that the bride is, at the altar, endowed with all the worldly goods of her bridegroom. In classes where his income does not run to thus safeguarding the wife's peace of mind when she finds herself, for the first time, dependent for every penny upon her husband she will, when her trousseau is given out, wear shabby shoes and threadbare gloves rather than overcome her natural diffidence to ask for the necessary money to buy more. A delicate sense of honor will prevent her from appropriating any of the housekeeping money to her own use. Then, indeed, is hers a sad case. Then, indeed, would the agreement between husband and wife for the wife to receive, not an allowance, but a salary for work performed, prove a blessing and would save her pride and perchance her happiness from being wrecked on this unpleasantly inevitable rock in the matrimonial ocean.

GUIDES TO HEALTH.

Cultivate happiness, smiles and laughter; they keep you young.

Lemon is a good nail bleach, but grease should be applied immediately afterward, as the acid is drying.

If an office or other indoor worker will finish lunch or dinner with a good salad and cheese instead of sweets he or she will be better off and look better.

Study what suits your digestion; do not eat too much meat or drink too much tea; indulge in good drafts of pure water at least twice a day, hot or cold, as suits you better.

Henna stain can be used to bring red tints in brown hair. Steep one ounce of dried leaves in a pint of water and apply. Shampoo the hair afterward. This is perfectly harmless.

Juvenile Courts in America.

Dr. Max Lederer of Prague, who was sent to the United States by the minister of justice of Austria to make a study of the American juvenile courts, in an elaborate report on the subject gives high praise to the institution, which he says owes its existence to the "efforts of women who realized that nothing worse could happen to a child than to be thrown in direct contact with criminals of mature years." He advocates the establishment of similar courts in Austria.

To Clean Furniture.

Go over the furniture with a cloth dipped in paraffin oil and allow it to stand for an hour, which will loosen the dirt. Next wash the furniture with a sudsy made of pure soap and hot water. Rub very dry with a soft cloth and polish with a piece of white flannel dipped in turpentine. This will not injure a piano, but restore the brilliant polish. Furniture gets dull because it is dirty and needs to be cleaned with soap and water.

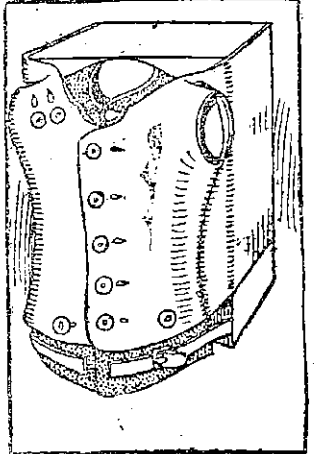

To Develop Neck and Chest

Recall all of the best singers you know and you will find that the majority of them are usually well developed in the throat and chest. Singing is a splendid exercise when considered in connection with the vital necessity of deep breathing. It is recognized as absolutely necessary for perfect health, and even if one cannot sing, at least the effort, if rewarded with good health, is not to be despised for its beneficial effects.

A NOVEL KNAPSACK.

Made in Conjunction With a Double Vest to Distribute Weight.

A novel improvement in knapsacks, more particularly in a combined knapsack and vest, by means of which a heavy weight or load can be easily and comfortably carried upon the shoulders, is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is especially well adapted for the purposes intended, being adjusted to fit different purposes and for receiving different sized loads. The knapsack is made a part of a double vest, consisting of inner and outer sections. The inner and outer sides of the knapsack are used to form the backs of the vests. The knapsack is rectangular in shape, being closed at the top by a cover. Any number of partitions can be placed in the interior of the knapsack to divide it into separate compartments. The weight of the load in this knapsack is equally distributed over the shoulders and back of the wearer, so that a very heavy weight can be conveniently carried. The various adjustments permit it to be properly fitted upon the person and adjusted for supporting the load in the most comfortable manner possible.

SECURED TO VEST.

Perfume Plants of India.

The manufacture of perfumes in India is an industry which probably dates back to "the dim ages of the past," for the native of India dearly loves perfumes. His tastes, however are not those of the European, and Indian scents do not commend themselves to Europeans for the reason that they are heavy," in the sense that they are not volatile. Indeed, the effects of Indian perfumes are generally overpowering to the outsider. Moreover, the method employed by the Indians to extract the perfume from flowers is peculiar, being always in oils. They have no idea of "essences," such as are manufactured by European perfumers.

One reason for the heaviness of Indian perfumes is found in the vehicle employed, which is sandalwood oil. This oil is not, strictly speaking, sandalwood oil, but the common "sweet," or "gen-jelly" oil employed as a vehicle for extracting the perfume from sandalwood, and it is this oil that forms the basis of all Indian perfumes, and which accounts for the heaviness referred to. The Indian perfumer has not yet arrived at the stage of assimilating western methods. When he does, the perfume industry of India will become one of the most important in the world.

Tidbit this country possesses hundreds of perfume-yielding plants is undoubted, and a few of them are the several Jessamines, the champaka, the rose, and keora. The well-known khus-khus yields an oil much utilized by natives; another grass oil is obtained from ogia grass. The foregoing may be regarded as the principal plants depended upon for the manufacture of Indian perfumes. They are, of course, hundreds—nay, thousands—of shrubs and trees in this country, yielding highly scented flowers, which could be utilized for perfume manufacture, and were a good firm to open a manufactory in India, an extraordinary impetus would be given to the perfume industry of this land.

Maintenance of Locomotives.

On 15 of the largest steam roads in the United States the average cost per locomotive for maintenance for some years has been $2,212 per annum, a total of over 7000 locomotives being included in the return. The nearly 8000 motor cars in this road was only $107 per car. If it takes four motor cars to equal in power and locomotive the corresponding figure would be $428.

Properties of Miraculum.

A creamy substance called "miraculum," the invention of an Australian, is being tested in this country in repairing punctured pneumatic tires. The substance is applied to the interior of a tube, and it is claimed, automatically seals a puncture the instant it is caused.

Decrease in Metal Price.

London and China, now use more mercury than most of the other countries and this is about the only metal the price of which has decreased of late. In the East it is used for making vermilion and in Japan largely in the compounding of a secret explosive.

THE RICHEST MINERAL LAND.

Output from One Hill Fourteen Thousand Tons a Day.

Butte Hill, far famed as the richest mineral-producing spot in the world, is an insignificant rise of land, not over 300 feet above the river level in the valley. It is, approximately, two and a half miles in length by two miles in width and is an irregular oval in shape. The richest ore-producing portion, however, is centered in a space of about two square miles. Within that limit there are no fewer than 40 principal shafts from 1,000 to 2,400 feet in depth, besides many smaller and less important developments and prospects. Underground there is a network of drifts, crosscuts and galleries, frequently intersecting each other and connecting the deep workings of different mines. It is estimated that there is more than 500 miles of such underground excavations. The output from this single hill is upward of 14,000 tons of ore a day, yielding more than 10,000 tons of refined copper a month, exclusive of gold and silver, which is fully 50 per cent larger production than any other cupriferous district in the world.

Graceful Parisian Women.

The graceful figures of Parisian women are said to be due mainly to diet and exercise. The French girl drinks a great deal of milk about the age of twenty after which her repasts are of a light and non-fattening kind. Where in other countries a woman would take a heavy meal, the Parisienne contents herself with a bowl of soup. Altogether her outdoor exercise is mainly limited to shopping excursions or short strolls in the city. She is very active about her household tasks, both from motives of economy and also as a means of keeping down superfluous flesh—Exchange.

Prevents Collision at Sea.

A German scientist has invented an automatic mechanism for preventing collisions at sea based upon the use of Hertzian waves. Miniature wireless telegraphy plants are to be placed on vessels, effective within a thousand yards radius. Two vessels fitted with this apparatus approaching each other in a fog and with the mechanism set would at 1,000 yards give mutual and automatic warning by acting upon each other's signal, which would, in its turn, automatically stop the engines.

Sugar From Corn Stalks.

Professor H. W. Wiley of the Department of Agriculture believes that the stalks of sweet corn might be made to yield sugar of the best quality. They contain much more sugar than those of the common field corn, and the sugar content is at its maximum at the time when the ears are pulled. Sugar, of course, is readily convertible into alcohol, and, inasmuch as each 10 pounds of stalks will yield 6½ pounds of alcohol, it is easily seen what a good thing the farmer has been allowing to go to waste.

Telephone for Police.

A pocket telephone for police purposes is the most novel thing in telephony. It is to be seen in daily use in Vienna, where every policeman on duty is provided with the necessary appliances. In every street of importance are special call boxes, and a man to communicate with his station has only to pull out his pocket apparatus and adjust it to the wire in the box. As a method of summoning aid in all but petty cases, the system seems to have many advantages over the whistle.

Craze for Picture Postals.

In Paris alone 1,500,000 picture postcards were delivered daily during the months of July and August. The increase on the daily average between April and July was 500,000, and even with a greatly increased staff there has been much difficulty in sorting and delivering the cards. The average number of picture postcards delivered in Paris daily in the winter is also very high—700,000.

Appointing Meat Inspectors.

In Battersea four plumbers and three carpenters discharged the duties of meat inspectors. In Hackney the duties have been committed to two plumbers, one builder, one carpenter, one bricklayer, one florist and one surveyor and one stonemason, while in Portsmouth a solitary butcher relieved as his colleagues three school teachers, a medical dispenser and a train conductor.

Latest Persian Parliament.

The members of the new Persian Parliament will be elected by the votes of all male Persians between the ages of 30 and 70 who are able to read and write, are not in the service of the State and have been convicted of crime.

A Novelty Tax.

Sixty children were entertained to tea at Hingham, England, on the bottom of a large public pond, to commemorate the fact that it was dry for the first time for nearly a hundred years.

Cost of Train Wrecking.

California makes the wrecking of a train or an engine a felony punishable by death or life imprisonment, at the option of the jury.

Best Means of Coast Defense.

The eminent French naval engineer M. Lambert, in a paper in the Paris Martin, maintains that the submarine is the one ideal means of coast defense for small states. The battleships, he says, remains the unquestioned master of the high seas. But history teaches us that from Salamis, Mylae and Actium to Lissa, Port Arthur and Tsushima, all the important naval battles have taken place within sight of the coast.

The Kaiser as Matchmaker.

A curious instance of the active part the Kaiser takes in arranging the marriages of relatives and friends is recorded. A personal aid-de-camp of His Majesty's was very much depressed by the lady of his choice giving him a refusal. The same afternoon the Kaiser drove to the house of the young lady, the daughter of a wealthy Berlin banker, and pleaded the cause of his aid-de-camp with such eloquence that the marriage took place a month later.

Where We Go Wrong.

We all make the mistake of living to a tomorrow that never comes. We neglect the only time we have—now. We are blind to the only opportunity we ever shall have—the present. We fool away the only day that can ever be today. And before we know where we are, life, opportunities, time and all have gone; and we realize that "the night cometh when no man can work."

Sanitation in India.

There are some terrible figures in a recent English blue book in relation to sanitary measures in India. Under the heading a plague it is recorded that the number of deaths due to this disease from the autumn of 1896 to the end of 1904 reached the enormous total of 3,269,510, of which 2,600,551 occurred in the British provinces.

The Catfish.

When de nights is warm en de moon is full
You kin ketch mo' cats dan you cares to pull.
No trouble 'bout de bait;
A grub 'll do or a 'll' fat meat,
Fer all he wants is sup'n' to eat,
En he ain't no ban' to wait.

Ner dar ain't no trouble 'bout luck wid him.
You kin de yo' line to a swingin' limb,
En when you goes to look
You'll fin' dar, dat limb a-doggin' 'round.
En bubbles ristin' en floatin' on down,
En a catfish on yo' hook.

But I chooses to take a pole in mine
En git in a splootch er bright moon-shine
En fish dar wid my han';
I knows, den, when 'e hits his hick
(He swallows de hook; you needn' be quick),
En I lets him show his man.

When I slings him ont on de dry grass
He don't complain, but he's full er sass.
He kicks a little while,
Den lays dar, wid a pleasing look,
En while I's ripplin' out de hook
He takes it wid a smile.

Times Have Changed.

Stow away the tea cups,
High up on the shelf;
The dainty ones of Dresden,
The fragile ones of elf.

O now it's fill the porringer
And bring the baby spoon;
For teas are of the future
And past that went so soon.

And take the German grammar,
The Greek and Latin prose,
And bury them forever
Among my college woes.

Then bring the book of fairy tales,
With pictures gay and bright,
That tells of bears and goblins
Which make you dream at night.

And cease to sing so gayly
The romping college song—
The old class yells of triumph
That echoed loud and long.

For I must soo mo'p softly,
In tones so low and deep,
And gently woo a drowsy head
And deep blue eyes to sleep.
Mary Sheridan Fahnestock.

Ferns.

What charming fantasies are found
In ferns,
Their lovely lacerates, their slender
wands,
The delicate unfolding of their fronds

In quiet copses and by lifting burns!
When June, with her intricate eyes,
returns,
And the wild rosebuds burst their fragile bonds
When lily petals part upon the ponds,
And tapering foxgloves ope their crimson urns.

Could one but penetrate the fern
arcades,
Those mazes of moss paven
avenues,
What fairy revels one might gaze upon—
Puck perking it, arrayed in gala
hues,
Leading the rout of elfin men and maids
Around the thrones of Mab and Oberon!

Clinton S. Holland.

Sans Souci.

Although I may drink deep to-day
A stupor-cup of sorrow,
I'll not debate with Hippant Fate,
But toast a glad to-morrow.

Then here's a laugh, though I may quaff
The hemlock's poisoned potion;
The only salts untouched by gales
Cruise on a painted ocean.

Away with woe that crowns low,
And whines a doleful story;
Travelling night, with dawn's gray
light,
Brings forth her child in glory.

The cures that fret when ill's beset
Are merely April showers,
That rain on life enough a strife
To beautify its flowers.

There blooms a rose for every nose,
And drowders joy in weeping;
For every heart there lives a heart
Somewhere that love is keeping.
Bohemian.

Evolution of Locomotion.
Long ago, when as a boy
The country I would see,
Pa's ox cart was a thing of joy—
A chariot for me.

When, as a youth, I courted went
With pretty, black eyed May,
Fell many a happy hour was spent
Behind Pa's ancient gray.

In later years when, like all men,
I felt ambition steal,
I took an outing now and then
Upon a monstrous wheel.

Now, as prosperity draws nigh,
With others I am seen
Like lightning, flashes speeding by
In my up to date machine.

Everything points to a big business here after the first of next month.

How much alteration do you expect in the Portsmouth city charter this year?

Will the Exeter cars run into Market square? And will the Atlantic Shore Line cars come over the old bridge after the new bridge is built?

At one school yesterday the children used shingles and pieces of board for the number work, in honor of the way that Lincoln got his education, by doing his work on strips of wood and bark.

It is true, as one of the books given away states, that scientific medical thought is now turning to natural remedies, and that the compounds developed by science as cures of natural ills are giving way to the cures known to ancestors. A generation or two past, or "Old Army" of the south who never called in the doctor to see the children. This is the reason the Kikabo Remedies are now being brought to public notice. LINCOLN NIGHT

Two Observances by Societies of Portsmouth

The chief celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was held on Friday evening in Freeman's hall, and that place was packed to the doors. The admission was free and every seat was taken long before the hour of the exercises. It was arranged under the auspices of the colored people of this city and they deserve a great deal of credit for their good work. The program was instructive and entertaining and held the attention of the big crowd until the end.

From 7:30 until 8 o'clock the Naval Band gave a concert and the exercises were opened with a selection by the Riverside Male Quartet of Cambridge who sang "Lincoln's Birthday." The invocation was given by Rev. W. A. Burch D. D. and Mayor Edward Adams delivered a short address on the subject of the celebration.

A selection by the Quartet entitled "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" was well rendered.

Commander Edwin H. Leslie of Storer Post, G. A. R. spoke on "How I knew Lincoln," being an interesting reminiscence of the war times.

The Star Spangled Banner by the Naval Band was followed by an address on "The Lincoln Crisis" by Col. John H. Bartlett.

"Three Little Piggies" by the quartet brought forth good applause.

The address of the evening was by Rev. C. A. Ward on "Abraham Lincoln and his influences upon the American people."

A selection "O Think of Thee" by the Quartet and the singing of America by the audience closed a very pleasing entertainment.

Spanish War Veterans Hold Services

Camp Winfield Scott Schley, No. 4, of the United Veterans of the Spanish war held a largely attended memorial service at their hall on Daniel street on Friday afternoon, in honor of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

Commander Owen Mooney presided and the principal address was made by Captain James Johnston of Newburyport. He spoke on "The Life of Abraham Lincoln and on the conditions of the North and South in Lincoln's day and today." It was a very interesting address and he showed intimate knowledge of his subject.

Prayer was given by Chaplain Frank H. Thompson U. S. N. Remarks were made by Adj. John Clifford, Senior Vice Commander John J. Doyle, and M. J. Marr of the New-Port Camp. The exercises were very interesting.

WINDOWS BLOWN OUT

Strange Midnight Explosion on One of Boston's Busy Streets

Boston, Feb. 12.—Investigation of an explosion which blew out the five big plate glass windows in the retail store of the Welbach Company of New England, No. 24 Summer street, and destroyed several thousand dollars worth of stock at midnight last night has been begun by the state police.

It is believed the explosion was caused by a leakage of gas from a defective pipe in the basement, which was set off by a lighted jet in the store.

The front of the store, expensive lamps, candelabra and fixtures were blown half-way across Summer street by the force of the explosion. Only the fact that there were few people in the vicinity prevented injury to passersby.

The damage to glass alone is in excess of $1,000.

POLICE COURT

George Wagollus faced Judge Simes today on the charge of assault on Joseph Zukies, and pleaded not guilty through his attorney, Harry F. Allen. The case was the result of some kind of a mixup on Saturday last at the West End, in which Zukies said Wagollus broke his eyeglasses.

The testimony was hard to extract from both side through one or more interpreters and everybody concerned in the case wanted to talk at the same time. The court finally compelled the delegation of trouble makers to get down to business and the case was sifted out with a fine of $1.00 and costs of $6.90, which he extracted from his jeans and went out rejoicing.

The hearty thanks of the Italian Red Cross Society are conveyed with the assurance that they are expressing the feeling of the people of all Italy.

IPSWICH TRAIN
WRECKER CAUGHT

The attempt at train wrecking at Ipswich on Feb. 4, news of which was published exclusively in the Herald of February 5, has been cleared up.

On that date train No. 64, Bangor and Boston passenger, which leaves here at 1:59 p. m. struck ties on the track, as also did an extra freight which followed.

The police have arrested James A. Day, aged twenty-three, who confesses that he put the ties on the track as he wanted to see some excitement. Day claims that it was all caused by hard cider which he had been drinking heavily.

He has been held for the grand jury in the sum of $2000.
